Save the Planet

These days, green is more than just the color you wear to avoid getting pinched on St. Patrick's Day. What does it mean to go green? Simply put, it's all about protecting the environment and using natural, renewable products. When you support companies that focus on sustainability or avoid harmful, synthetic products that can be damaging to the environment, you're going green. We all know that it's important to keep our planet healthy, so it's easy to see why scientists and conservationists around the world have been pushing this initiative. However, if you've been paying attention to the media, you know that a lot of companies have started "greenwashing" their brands, or playing up the natural aspects of their products as a way to sell more of them. It's evident that these companies are more dedicated to marketing than the environment.

So how do you know who is actually committed to environmentalism, and who is just blowing smoke? Well, as it says in the bible, "By their fruits ye shall know them." And Young Living's fruits are pretty impressive. Their all-natural products are pure and of the highest quality, strictly adhering to revolutionary therapeutic-grade standards. Young Living is committed to engaging in the most sustainable forestry and farming practices possible, and their products are created from renewable sources. So, if you're looking for natural, powerful alternatives to the chemically altered and synthetic products in your home, look no further than Young Living. This March, go green instead of just wearing it.

Ditch the Cleaner

It's no secret that most household cleaners are packed full of harmful chemicals and harsh additives. That's why Young Living created a household cleaner that harnesses the power of Thieves Essential Oil. A highly effective immune booster, Thieves was created based on research about four thieves in France who covered themselves with cloves, rosemary and other aromatics while robbing plague victims to protect themselves from the disease, and now you can use that legendary power to keep your home healthy and clean. Whether you're cleaning your carpet or your counters, Thieves Household Cleaner is up to the job. The bottle is 100% recyclable, and since it contains ingredients from renewable plant and mineral sources as well as vegetable-based surfactants compliant with the Green Seal and EPA Design for Environment (DfE) standards, you can rest easy knowing that you're helping both the environment and your family.
